

The Ultimate Early Game checklist

When choosing your landing spot, make sure:

1- Your landing spot has at least 5 to 6 chests MINIMUM in a small radius

Your old solo uncontested landing spot with only 2-3 chests doesn't cut it anymore with 50% chests spawn. Try to minimize the impact of RNG by making sure you have a good amount of chests to loot early on,

2- You have some bailing options if it's too contested

Sticking to your favorite drop even when you know you won't land on a gun first is not a good idea. Instead, have a plan B and avoid dying off spawn by landing somewhere else.

3- You have easy to farm Wood, Brick and METAL in your looting path

This is one you absolutely need. Especially easy to farm metal because of it's rarity in the game since the car update. Without decent mats you're basically dead late game.

4- You have some form of natural cover for early game fights

This will prevent being third partied and help you finding good angles in the first 60 sec of the game since you won't have lots of materials to deal with.

5- You have access to some form of rotation (boats, cars, rifts or ziplines)

This will make sure you have enough time to loot and farm, while minimizing damage taken by the storm

6- You have access to some form of FREE healing (slurp barrels, mushrooms or fish).

This will ensure you keep your potions for late game during fights or if you get tagged mid game.

When dropping off the bus, make sure;

7- You're scouting for enemies that are landing at your spot or near you?

Getting information while gliding to your favorite spot is critical for deciding if you are sticking or maybe land at another house.

8- To land on a gun or a chest that you can see.

With 50% chests spawn. Simply relying on RNG isn't going to cut it. Landing on top of a house and praying that the chest will be there will screw you up half the time. Floor loot are underated.

9- To end early game fight quickly.

Be aware of your opponent loadout and take advantage of that knowledge to decide how to engage. Time is a precious ressource.

10- To have an optimal looting route with multiple options in case you're contested.

Every little thing must be planned. Exactly where you land, what you farm and how you rotate towards zone. Have different looting route planned for the same landing spot depending on where the zone is.
